Report On Situation At Budapest Presented To Conference

(Reuter's Wireless Service)

Paris, November 5.—(Via Lyons and Koukaza).—The Supreme Council this morning decided that Paris should be the seat of the first meeting of the Executive Council of the League of Nations, which will take steps to ensure the enforcement of the Treaty.

The Council began a recapitulatory examination of the questions still to be settled.

ARRANGE PLEBISCITES

(French Wireless Service)

Paris, November 5.—(Via Lyons and Koukaza).—The Supreme Allied Council met yesterday morning, M. Stephen Pichon presiding. Italy was represented by Signor di Martino. The Council decided that the chairmanship of the Plebiscitory Commissions and the commands of the Inter-Allied detachments should be allocated as follows:

District of Alenstein—Great Britain.

District of Marienwerder—Italy.

District of Upper Silesia—France.

District of Teschen—United States, and provisionally, France, until America had ratified the Treaty.

The Council had before it Sir George Clerk's report on the situation at Budapest, and discussed the Hungarian problem. No decision was taken. The Council agreed that the Danube Commission should be represented at the Conference, under the provision of Article 349 of the Versailles Treaty.

NEW BRITISH WARSHIP HAS UNIQUE FEATURES

Vessel Combines Battleship's Weight And Resistance With Cruiser's Speed

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 1.—John Brown and Co., of Clydebank, have finished the construction of the battleship Soon which is believed to be the first capital ship to have been completed in any country since the Battle of Jutland. She combines a battleship's weight and resistance with a battle cruiser's speed, and gunpower.

Her length is 860 feet, breadth 104 feet, draft 28 feet, displacement 41,200 tons. Her main armament consists of eight fifteen-inch guns mounted on four gunhouses, two pairs forward and two aft. Her secondary battery consists of 12.5 inch guns besides an entirely new weapon of fifty calibers throwing a projectile of 82 pounds which will penetrate over four inches of the hardest steel at 500 yards.

A bulge affixed under the waterline protects the vessel against submerged explosion. The plan does not indicate the protection of the decks, tops, and barbettes but it is certain that it will be formidable, after the lessons of Jutland.

The ship's enginepower far exceeds that of any previous British warship. Her Brown and Curtis turbines will develop five times the power allotted to the earlier Dreadnoughts, giving her a speed of 31 knots.

The Times naval correspondent remarks that it is possible the Lord Fisher-Sir Percy Scott school of thinkers are right that the Soon will be the last of the great warships of her kind.

Garibaldi In Fiume To Confer With D'Annunzio

General Garibaldi.

General Giuseppe "Peppino" Garibaldi, grandson of the famous Italian liberator, recently went to Paris on an important mission for the Italian Government, and from there proceeded to Fiume to confer with Captain Gabriele D'Annunzio on the Fiume crisis. The D'Annunzio coup in Fiume has caused a political crisis in Italy.

List Of Appointees Approved In Resolution Adopted At Presidency

Peking, November 6.—The meeting at the Presidency yesterday passed a resolution in favor of the following nominations which will be submitted to Parliament unless the Anfu Club succeeds in forcing alterations, for the list shows that General Chin Yun-peng has largely succeeded in pushing through the names of his own men.

Premier and Minister of War: Chin Yun-peng.

Minister of Finance: Chow Tse-chi.

Minister of the Interior: Tien Wen-lieh.

Minister of Education: Hsia Shou-kang.

Minister of Commerce: Chang Chi-tang.

The portfolios of the Navy, Foreign Affairs and Justice remain unchanged.

WORK MOVING SWIFTLY IN DEVASTATED AREAS

Much Of Property Destroyed By Germans Restored And Roads Replaced

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 1.—M. Claveille, Minister of Public Works, has just returned from the devasted regions with "the most consoling impressions." He says that at the time of the armistice 33,000 kilometers of main lines, 1,200 bridges and also great depots and workshops were destroyed. Today the main lines have been restored and 40 percent of the work of restoration of the depots and workshops has been completed. Out of 48,000 kilometers of roads destroyed, 12,000 have been remade, while the majority of the 3,137 wrecked bridges have been reconstructed.

British Trade Conference Tells Chinese How To Lift Yoke Of Extraterritoriality

Stable Government And Proper Administration Of Satisfactory Code Of Laws Held To Be Essential Preliminaries

The essential preliminary to the abolition of extra-territoriality is the establishment of a stable government in China, delegates to the British Trade Conference maintain. In a resolution passed yesterday the Conference expressed the opinion that a satisfactory code of laws and satisfactory arrangements for the administration of such laws must precede the surrender of extra-territorial rights.

Other resolutions passed urged the suppression of piracy and lawlessness in Kwangtung Province, a submarine cable or better telegraph service for Swatow and adequate protection for British authors, publishers and copyright owners.

The Conference expressed the opinion that the likin system should be abolished in return for an increase in import duties but considers that the Treaty Powers must obtain guarantees against the institution of other forms of internal taxation.

Shipping questions were brought before the Conference and a resolution passed asking that pressure be brought on steamship companies to increase ordinary cargo valuation to something more commensurate with the present day value in view of the world-wide increase in freight rates and cargo values. Another urged discussion of the basis of allotment and general principle of freight space allocation by the London Homeward Freight Conference to ascertain whether firms in the outports receive fair treatment.

The new Anglo-Chinese co-operative movement was welcomed in a resolution that urged the formation at all large treaty ports of co-operative enterprises and social clubs such as those at Shanghai, Tientsin and Peking.

Other matters were discussed in the Conference and it was announced last night that some of these will probably be published tomorrow.

The resolutions passed at yesterday's session follow:

STABLE GOVERNMENT FIRST

"While this Conference sympathises with the desire of the Chinese to see extra-territoriality abolished, and realises the benefits that would accrue through throwing the country open to residence and trade, it considers as essential preliminaries to the surrender of extra-territorial rights the establishment of stable government, a satisfactory code of laws, and satisfactory arrangements for the administration of such laws, and this Conference suggests that efforts should be made to carry into effect the agreement by Great Britain to assist China in reforming her judicial system in pursuance of Article 12 of the Treaty of 1902."

"That the basis of allotment and general principle of the allocation of freight space by the London Homeward Conference steamers be discussed with a view to ascertaining whether firms in outports receive fair treatment."

CABLE FOR SWATOW

"That in view of the world wide increase in rates of freight and cargo values, this Conference is strongly of opinion that the utmost pressure should be brought to bear on all Shipping Companies to increase the ordinary cargo valuation to something more commensurate with present day value."

"That in view of the ever increasing importance of Swatow as a trade and emigration center and of the eminently unsatisfactory and inadequate land line telegraph service on which the port is solely dependent, this Conference is of the opinion that an efficient submarine cable service, so long enjoyed by other Coast Ports with a smaller volume of trade and fewer shipping facilities, should be instituted; and that should political or other considerations preclude the Cable Companies from establishing themselves at Swatow, representations should be made in the name of this Conference through diplomatic channels to the Chinese authorities with a view to the speedy and permanent im-

ALL GERMANY BLAMED BY HOLLWEG FOR WAR

Majority Of People, He Says, Wanted Predominance Of Military Leaders

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, November 1.—Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg giving evidence before the Commission of the National Assembly which is enquiring into the possibilities of peace during the war said "after our indescribable collapse which was only possible because we have all sinned, I will not throw the blame on others but I must state the fact that the majority of the German people and its lawful representatives desired the predominance of their military leaders."

He emphasised the fact that there was a deep-rooted belief on the part of the Reichstag and an overwhelming majority of the nation as well as the supreme army command and Admiral von Tirpitz in 1917, that the submarine would end the war soon.

BRITISH COTTON MEN REFUSED TREASURY AID

Held Expenses Of Mission To Far East Should Be Paid By The Industry

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 30.—Addressing the Association of British Chambers of Commerce in London, Sir Hamar Greenwood, referring to the Treasury's refusal to meet the cost of the Far Eastern Cotton Mission proposed by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, said that while the department of Overseas Trade endorsed the Manchester view of the need of that mission, he thought that as the cotton trade was enjoying a period of wonderful prosperity, the trade might find the money.

Ex-Senator Burton And Cunningham To Speak Before Club

American Consul General And Former Legislator Guests At Luncheon Today

Mr. Theodore E. Burton, for over 25 years a member of the United States Congress, who is now visiting in Shanghai, will speak at a luncheon to be given by the American University Club of China at the Carlton Cafe, at 12:15 o'clock today. Mr. E. S. Cunningham, American Consul-General at Shanghai, will also deliver a brief address.

Senator Burton, who is now president of the Mechants' National Bank of New York, has been on an extensive trip through he Orient for several months.

He served in Congress from 1889 to 1915 and in 1916 received the unanimous endorsement of the Ohio delegation as a candidate for President of the United States on the Republican ticket.

From 1904 to 1915 he served on the executive committee of the Interparliamentary Union and as such attended meetings in St. Louis, London, Geneva, Paris and The Hague. He is the author of several books on financial and economic subjects.

Owing to the importance of Senator Burton's address, arrangements have been made for accommodating a large attendance at the Carlton. Members of the University Club are permitted to bring as many guests as they desire. Mr. Tong Shao-yi, former head of the Southern peace delegation, will preside at the luncheon.

OMSK REPORTS ENEMY CHECKED AT ONE POINT

Evacuation By Government Is Said To Be Proceeding Satisfactorily

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Omsk, Nov. 4.—General headquarters reports:

"The enemy attempted to cross the river Ichime, seventy versts north of Detropavlovsk, but was driven back to the Western bank."

General Beloff, who is in charge of the evacuation of Omsk, has issued an order of the day thanking all railway employes "for their self-sacrificing work at so grave a time."

The Russian Telegraph Agency states:

"The evacuation of the Civil Government from Omsk is being carried out normally and in good order."

Czecho-Slovaks In City On Way Home From Siberia

Force Of 875 Soldiers With American Red Cross Nurses And Doctors Wrecked On Way

Convalescent Czecho-Slovak soldiers to the number of 875, with American Red Cross nurses and physicians from Siberia arrived in Shanghai yesterday morning on the U. S. Shipping Board steamer Heffron and will remain here for several days while the vessel takes cargo. The ship is moored to P. and O. buoy No. 4, opposite the Shanghai-Hongkew Wharf.

The party is in charge of Major S. T. Short of the American Red Cross, whose home is Honolulu. Other Americans in the party include Lieutenant Warner of South Bend, Indiana, Dr. Charles E. Montgomery of Walla Walla, Wash., Dr. Openkhotsky, and nurses, Miss Pauliny and Miss Belisek, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson West and two assistants, Misses Janet Dewar and Lillian Fitzpatrick, the last two from Hawaii. Mr. West has been the U. S. War Trade Board representative in Vladivostok and his wife has been serving as a Red Cross nurse.

WRECKED ON WAY

It was the Heffron with this same party of nurses and wounded Czechs that went on a reef in a typhoon outside of Shiminoseki August 13. The details of that harrowing experience are told by the American women who are still with the ship and say they have no intention of leaving until it reaches Trieste.

They had arrived on Friday night in the neighborhood of Shiminoseki. Because of the storm and fog no pilot boat was there to meet the Heffron so an attempt was made to anchor. At 4:30 the next morning, the anchor dragging, the ship drifted onto a submerged reef.

The women were not told until daybreak, but they surmised that something was wrong from the wracking jarr felt each time the vessel, lifted by the high seas, dropped back again onto the rocks.

Saturday, the storm was at its height and though calls for help were sent, none came until late that day when a Japanese salvage boat arrived and made futile efforts to pull the Heffron off. This vessel stood by all night.

SLEEP IN LIFE BELTS

Sunday morning two Japanese war vessels arrived and their efforts to pull the Heffron free were also in vain. The vessel by this time had listed heavily to one side and water stood 23 feet deep in the forward half. Each heavy wave resulted in new holes being punched in the plates. Passengers slept in their life belts.

All day long the typhoon raged unabated with the wind most of the time blowing off Shiminoseki. On Monday the storm subsided and all passengers were removed and taken in boats to Moji.

That city was in no position to take care of such a party but the Y.M.C.A. building was turned over to them and the Czech soldiers without grumbling took to the beds on the hard floor.

After two weeks they were carried by special train to Kobe where again they were given the Y.M.C.A. building and another structure recently vacated by the Kobe Commercial School.

In the meantime the ship had been towed into dry-dock. The bunks were removed and again set up for the convalescent men. A Red Cross hospital and a mess were established in tents between the two buildings and the whole party settled down to a two-months wait. The Japanese authorities gave them every consideration.

EUROPE ALARMED

Grave Consequences Seen In London As Result Of Struggle In U.S.

COURT IS DEFIED

Injunction Issued From Federal Tribunal Is Ignored By Unions

(Reuter's Service)

New York, November 1.—The strike of coal miners broke out at midnight. The union leaders estimate that 377,000 men are taking part and that thousands of others are ready to down tools today.

Reports available indicate that the majority of miners in the great producing regions of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Kentucky, Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Wyoming and Washington, have left work.

ALARM IN EUROPE

London, October 31.—On the eve of the coal strike which is due to commence at midnight in America, involving 400,000 unionist miners and possibly 200,000 non-unionists, attention is being focussed on the grave and far-reaching consequences involved for Europe by this struggle. It is noteworthy that the miners demand a 60 percent increase of wages, a six-hour day, a five day week, and the abolition of certain labor contract penalties.

There are already 600 ships including 400 steamers held up at New York, and there are no signs of any settlement.

TROOPS ORDERED OUT

The Government is rushing up troops with machine-guns to the coalfields and has completed its plans to combat the strike and protect non-strikers and essential industries. Maximum prices for coal are being re-established.

Meanwhile, at the eleventh hour, the Federal Court at Indianapolis has passed an injunction forbidding the strike on the ground that it "involves national disaster." The injunction which is to be operative until November 8, commands Union officials to withdraw the strike order and forbids strike pay. The petition for the injunction charges the Miners' Committee with attempting to intimidate the coal-owners and refusing the arbitration proposed by the Secretary of Labor, Mr. Willian B. Wilson.

IGNORES COURT ORDER

Interviewed on the subject, the Miners' leaders declared that the injunction writ would not avert the strike, and that it was the most sweeping abrogation of the rights of citizenship and would only complicate the ultimate solution.

The House of Representatives by an overwhelming majority adopted the Senate's resolution pledging to support the Government.

Fuel Needs Of Vessels On Pacific Not Endangered

Nearly 98 percent of the freighters and passenger liners operating on the Pacific burn oil. Steamship companies with ports of call on the West Coast of North America are supplied with coal by Canadian miners. Thus the coal strike will not affect trans-Pacific shipping, according to local business men.

Canadian Pacific Ocean Services freighters and passenger steamers and Japanese owned vessels burn coal. One liner operated by the China Mail Steamship Company uses coal for fuel. But oil is the fuel for all United States Shipping Board freighters, Pacific Mail Steamship Company liners, one China Mail passenger ship and the Robert Dollar Company ships.

Over 90 percent of the coal supplied to ports on the West Coast of the United States comes from Nanimo, British Columbia, about 150 miles from Vancouver, according to shipping men.

If Canadian miners strike in sympathy, steamers operating on the Pacific could secure sufficient coal at Oriental ports to make the round trip. This would not be profitable, shipping men say, but is a possibility in case of emergency.

From Japan to the Pacific Coast a steamer burns 950 tons of coal. The round trip would require 1,900 tons and approximately 1,000 tons of cargo would be displaced, a loss of G. $15,000 to steamship companies.

Denied Southerners Are Making Advance

Believed In Peking Outbreak Of Hostilities Is Not Imminent

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, November 3.—General Wu Pei-fu has telegraphed to the Central Government from Hunan saying that the reported advance of the Southern army along the Hunan front has not been verified and that peace and order now prevail in Hengchow. He states that he is able to deal with any emergency in Southern Hunan and accordingly requests the Government to send no troops to that district.

Wu Pei-fu's statements find confirmation in reports to foreign military observers in Peking, who are of the opinion that there has been and will be no fighting in either Hunan or Fukien.

The massing of Southern troops along these fronts is looked upon as a purely political measure pursued with a view to impressing the North with the strength of the Southern Army.

Neither the troops of the South nor those of the North are equipped for an active campaign; and in the light of past events it is highly unlikely that there will be any more general fighting between the two factions.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, November 6.—The delegates from Generals Hsiun Keh-wu and Tang Chi-yao are confining their negotiations with the Government almost entirely to the question of a separate peace between their principals and the Government.

TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT IN AID OF GIRLS' SCHOOL

Variety Show At Olympic To Raise Funds For Ming Sung School

The Ming Sung Girls' School French Concession, will present a variety entertainment at the Olympic Theatre Saturday evening, November 15. Several well-known institutions in Shanghai will take part. Proceeds of the sale of tickets will go to the school funds. Tickets at $3, $2 and $1 can be procured from the school, its committee and at the theater on the night of the performance.

The school was founded in 1912 by Miss Y. N. Woo, who for a considerable period supported the institution at her own expense. It has grown rapidly and has today a daily attendance of about 150. As the object of the school is to give all comers a free education as far as practical, many of the students are financially poor.

The program of the entertainment is as follows:

Opening address—chairman.
Piano solo—Mrs. D. Y. Chang and Mrs. S. T. Von.
Songs—McTyeire Girls' School and Mary Farnham Girls' School.
Dance—McTyeire Girls' School and the Y. W. C. A.
Chinese boxing—Mr. T. D. Ning of the Chin Woo Athletic Club.
Fire bars—Ai Kou Girls' School.
"The Happy Servants"—by the Sih Yue Society.
"The Fruit of Love"—by the Returned Students From Japan.
"A Talking Dream"—a Chinese play by local talent.

Rotary Club Hears New Consul-General

Reverend John R. Hykes Also Speaks At Meeting Of Club

United States Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham and the Rev. John R. Hykes were the speakers yesterday noon at the weekly tiffin of the Shanghai Rotary Club at the Cafe Parisien. There were between 40 and 50 guests present.

"National and International Interests" was the subject of the Consul-General who urged that the Rotarians, as an international body look to international opportunities and relationships which have a big part in such a community as this.

The Rev. Hykes, who has been in China for 46 years and is head of the American Bible Society in Shanghai, gave humorous reminiscences of pioneering in China.

STRASBURG IS EN FETE TO GREET CLEMENCEAU

Chamber's Future Political Program Is Outlined In Premier's Address

(French Wireless Service)

Paris, November 5.—(Via Lyons and Koukaza).—Strasburg was en fete and gaily bedecked with tricolor flags, when, amid indescribable enthusiasm, M. Clemenceau delivered his great speech outlining his political program.

The Premier first of all ran through the Peace Treaty. He said that the organisation of the world brought the treaty for the civilised peoples to work upon. He next dealt with grave problems of internal, political and constitutional reform. The illustrious statesman advocated a wide development of local liberties and equitable social reform, but to be undertaken in a orderly manner, without recourse to violence or concession to Bolshevism.

M. Clemenceau went on to outline the program of the future Chamber. First and foremost, he said, it must balance the budget and assure the strict application of the credits voted and the collection of taxes. Secondly, there was the restoration of the devastated regions, agricultural improvement, development of the potassium mines in Alsace, etc. Lastly, an end must be put to the ill-omened struggle between capital and labor. The co-operative movement must be developed and the diminishing birthrate remedied.

M. Clemenceau concluded by a stirring call to action. "Germany," he said, "did us a service in calling us back to our duty towards ourselves. Alsace and Lorraine bring us splendid resources. It must be our ambition to increase them still more. All Frenchmen for the greatness and beauty of France all united for the good of humanity."

Three thousand persons listened to M. Clemenceau's speech which evoked great enthusiasm. At the conclusion all present sang the "Marseillaise."

NEW PEKING NEWSPAPER OUTLINES ITS POLICY

Ming Pao In Its First Issue Denies Connection With Any Political Party

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, November 2.—The editorial of the first issue of the Peking Ming Pao, which appeared yesterday says:

"With the appearance of the Ming Pao let us request our readers to set their hearts at ease. As the promoters of the Ming Pao have no connection whatsoever with any political party, the paper will attack neither parties nor their leaders. Our policy is to adopt a neutral attitude no matter who holds the reins of government and we shall shut our eyes and turn a deaf ear to whatever is said and done by the Anfu Club, the Yenchiu Clique, the Kuomintang or the Chengyu Hui.

"The Ming Pao will devote its energies to social reforms and the development of Chinese trade. In our humble opinion the present corruption prevailing in political circles is due to the ignorance and indifference of the people as a whole, for our so-called statesmen are the logical products of the national tendency to indifference and corruption. The causes underlying this evil are lack of education and the prevailing indifference of the individual to the welfare of society as a whole.

"The failure of our merchants to engage successfully in trade with foreign countries is due not to their own stupidity, but to defects in their business organisation and ignorance of foreign trade conditions and this explains why foreign merchants succeed out here where Chinese merchants fail, or linger behind.

"Hence the discussion of social reforms and the reorganisation of China's commerce and industry will take us months, and even years, and there will be neither time nor opportunity for us to engage in political discussions."

The above editorial, written by Professor Soong of the Peking Government University, is looked upon here as the only safe policy for a vernacular newspaper published in Peking to follow. Peking has nearly 50 Chinese daily newspapers, which, with the exception of not more than five dailies appear for the sole purpose of representing the political views of some party or military leader. Those sheets which voice the views of the ruling cliques in this city can appear without fear of censorship or suppression, but they are read by only a limited clientele and have no national standing. As for the independent or liberal dailies, the powers that be have either suppressed them or inspired them with such fear of suppression that they do not dare to publish the news of the day, let alone comment upon it as they see it. This last statement applies almost as much to the vernacular dailies under foreign registration as it does to the Chinese-owned press, the only exceptions to the rule being the Japanese-owned newspapers, which as a general rule support the present reactionary elements in Peking and elsewhere.

Hence independent and liberal newspaper men here feel that the great task of the Chinese newspaper today is to educate the masses of the people along social and commercial lines. And to reach the masses they say that the best medium is a newspaper published in the Mandarin colloquial and at a price that is within the reach of every one. A daily of this kind, which publishes the main events of the day without comment and discusses China's trade and social problems can make itself the greatest educational force in the country, while at the same time keeping out of the reach of a long-armed and reactionary government. To the Pai Hua, or colloquial daily, China's liberals accordingly, look for the upbuilding of journalistic standards and the awakening of the Chinese people to the social, commercial and even political needs of their country.

Fetes At Montreal For Prince Of Wales

Royal Visitor Admitted To Guild Of Students At Laval University

(Reuter's Service)

Montreal, October 30.—The popular demonstrations in honor of the Prince of Wales continue in the most striking fashion, including, firework displays and illuminations.

The students of Laval University presented His Royal Highness with cap and stick and solemnly admitted him to their guild. The ceremony of passing him beneath an arch of sticks held aloft by the students provoked tremendous enthusiasm. The Prince was almost buried beneath gaudy-colored paper streamers.

The Opera

Last night's "Thais" could only increase our admiration for Mr. Hochloff. His presentation of the monk "Athanael" was entirely reverent and masterly. The monk sets out to denounce the license of Alexandria and to reclaim "Thais," the city's sensation of the moment. "Thais" at last is admitted to a convent repentant. The monk finds his love for the penitent is now a human passion. Such love as he has shunned and denounced in others possesses him as he seeks out the convent to claim "Thais" for himself.

She is now dying, and the monk cannot recall her thoughts to human emotions.

Mr. Hochloff must be heard, in order that the possibilities of such a part may be realised.

Miss Ossipova as "Thais" sang all the quieter and affecting passages with fine effect. The chorus of monks and Alexandrians produced some fine singing. Mr. Preobragensky was as satisfactory as in all his varied work.

The famous intermezzo touched the audience deeply. Some of the changes of scenery were long enough to destroy the continuity of the opera. We understand that these delays are quite unavoidable and one complete scene was omitted—very wisely.

It is a thousand pities that the audience should feel compelled to leave early in any play in which Mr. Hochloff appears owing to such delays.

Tonight: "Romeo and Juliet" (Gounod).

On Japan's Pledge Korean Here Plans To Go To Tokio

Rev. W. H. Lyuh, Assured Of Safe Conduct, To Leave With Nipponese Y.M.C.A. Secretary

Guarantees of safety were pledged and passage was engaged early this week for the Rev. W. H. Lyuh, Korean revolutionary of this city, and Mr. K. Fujita, general secretary of the Japanese Y.M.C.A. in Shanghai, to leave together Saturday for Japan, there to hold unofficial negotiations with the Japanese Government.

It was stated authoritatively yesterday, however, that the other members of the Korean independence movement in Shanghai have interfered and that they will not permit Pastor Lyuh "to commit suicide" as they term it. Incidentally it brings to light the fact that the Korean Provisional Government whose headquarters were closed by order of the authorities in Frenchtown three weeks ago is flourishing somewhere in the foreign quarter as vigorously as ever.

Mr. Lyuh is a recognised leader of the Korean independence movement and prominent as pastor of the local Shanghai Korean congregation. He is not, so far as is known, a member of the revolutionary government. In an address last summer before the missionary conference in Kuling, however, he told in English the aims of the Korean people and what he knew of atrocities that had been perpetrated in his country.

His attitude was not anti-Japanese but was directed rather against Japanese militarists. It has been his contention that the Japanese people would profit as much by Korean independence as the Koreans themselves. Possibly as a result of this attitude he has various friends among the Christian Japanese, including the secretary of the Shanghai Japanese Y.M.C.A.

It was last spring, shortly after the violent outbreak in Korea, that Mr. Fujita first proposed that Mr. Lyuh visit Japan and present his case before high Japanese officials. Mr. Lyuh refused but when the Japanese secretary persisted and later presented letters guaranteering Mr. Lyuh's safe passage through Japan and Korea and his return to Shanghai in company with Mr. Fujita.

One letter came from Dr. Koga, Commissioner of Immigration and a member of the Imperial cabinet. Dr. Koga offered to arrange interviews with the premier, Mr. Hara, Baron Shibusawa, Baron Saito and others.

In response to inquiries concerning possible disregard of the guarantees by other Japanese officials, Dr. Koga is alleged to written that he would pledge Mr. Lyuh's safe return with his own life.

Such being the statement the Korean gave his consent and two nights ago a small informal dinner was given as a farewell to both he and Mr. Fujita.

At that meeting he stated that he would ask for no more guarantees or documents than his friend's word.

Mr. Fujita replied that he was risking his own reputation and that of the whole Christian movement of Japan if the guarantee was not kept, yet he had no hesitation in promising that Mr. Lyuh would be given his full liberty again in Shanghai within a few weeks. This was Wednesday evening.

On Thursday morning a majority of the Korean provisional cabinet met "somewhere" in Shanghai. It was unanimously agreed that Mr. Lyuh should not go. Guarantees were but scraps of paper, they maintained.

Mr. Li Dong-whi, premier of the provisional government, called attention to the press statements of Mr. Min and Mr. Song, former loyal Korean independents, whose words now appear everywhere in Korea conselling submission.

That Mr. Lyuh would be misquoted and his words falsified to discredit the Korean independence movement was a foregone conclusion, Mr. Li declared.

If the Japanese meant no treachery, they would first restore to liberty Chang Duck-koo, Sin Surk-woo and Youn Won-samp, the men spirited away from the French authorities in Shanghai last May.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WILL WELCOME CONSUL

American Organisation Also To Entertain Returned President, Mr. J. Harold Dollar

The American Chamber of Commerce of China will give a dinner next Thursday evening, at the American Club in honor of the new American Consul-General at Shanghai, Mr. Edwin S. Cunningham, and to welcome the return of the President of the Chamber, Mr. J. Harold Dollar, who will tell of business conditions in America as he observed them during his recent visit.

This dinner will be the first general meeting of the members of the Chamber since the last annual meeting.

provement of the existing telegraph service of this port, not only in regard to the transmission of messages, but also in regard to the efficiency of the local staff of clerks, etc."

"That this Conference is of opinion that steps should be taken as soon as possible to carry into effect the terms of Article 8 of the Mackay Treaty which provided for the abolition of likin in return for an increase in the import duties, but considers it essential that before giving their consent to an increase of the import duties the Treaty Powers should obtain from the Chinese Government satisfactory guarantees against the institution of any other forms of inland taxation of merchandise direct or indirect."

"That this Conference welcomes the new Anglo-Chinese co-operative movement evidenced in schemes for co-operative enterprises and in social clubs such as exist in Peking, Tientsin and Shanghai, and urges the formation of similar institutions in all large treaty ports."

WELCOMES CO-OPERATION

"That this Conference is of the opinion that the Chinese Government should be urged to institute copyright laws having in view the securing to British authors, publishers and copyright owners protection in China against unauthorised reproductions of their literary, dramatic and artistic works."

"That the attention of the Chinese Government be urgently directed to the suppression of piracy and state of lawlessness which exists within the confines of the Province of Kwangtung and more especially in the Canton Delta, resulting in a condition of affairs which is most detrimental to trade generally and the prosperity of the South of China."

BANQUET TO SIR JOHN

Mr. Yang Tchang, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs for Shanghai will be host at a banquet to be given in honor of Sir John Jordan, the British Minister, at the Naval Club on Bubbling Well Road tomorrow night at eight o'clock. The other invited guests will include General Wang Juchien, Acting Defense Commissioner; Admiral K. K. Lang, Chief of the Admiralty; Taoyin Wang Keng-ting, and Magistrate Shen Pao-chang.

Reception Given Sir John By Chinese Chamber

Sir John Jordan, the British Minister, was presented with a commendatory tablet yesterday afternoon by the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce. Over 60 prominent Chinese were present. Mr. Chu Pao-san, chairman of the chamber, made the presentation. Sir John, who responded in Chinese, emphasised the necessity of co-operation between British and Chinese commercial men.

"During the 43 years that I have lived in China," said the British Minister, "I have been treated most kindly by the Chinese and they have given me an infinite amount of pleasure. On account of my age, I am returning home. I can assure you that your courtesy in giving me this reception and presenting me with this gift is greatly appreciated.

"The trade of China is today being developed. My hope is that in the future British and Chinese merchants will co-operate and will befriend one another in order to mutually aid in the trade of the two nations. Then the development of the trade in China can not be overestimated."

Among those present were members of the British Consulate-General Staff, Foreign Commissioner Yang Tcheng, Taoyin Wang Keng-ting, Secretary Sun Tse-chin of the Office of the Defense Commissioner, Messrs. Sun Han-chang, Shen Lien-fang, H. Y. Moh, Y. C. Tong, C. C. Nieh and Zih Li-kung.

NanyangCo. Head Receives Decoration

Mr. Kan Chiu-nan Gets Second Order Of Chiaho For Relief Work

A Presidential mandate issued Wednesday conferred the Second Order of the Chiaoho with the Grand Cordon on Mr. Kan Chiu-nan, president of Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Company. The order is awarded to Mr. Kan in recognition of his subscriptions to various famine and flood relief funds. It is estimated that Mr. Kan's gives over $100,000 a year to deserving objects.

Early this year when there was a rice shortage in Canton, Mr. Kan organised a food relief association which enabled tens of thousand of people to survive. He also subscribed to the relief funds during the flood this Autumn in Hupeh, Szechuen, Hunan, Fukien, Kiangsu and Chekiang.

Urge Farmers To Work Only 8 Hours A Day

Franklin, Penn., September 23.—With a view to obtaining the eight-hour day for the farmers of Venango County the following resolution has been adopted by the Venango County Pomona Grange:

"Resolved, That inasmuch as various labor organisations are demanding an eight-hour day, we, as members of the Venango County Pomona Grange, representing twelve subordinate granges and a membership of 1,800, do hereby go on record as favoring an equal working day for farmers. We feel justified in the act, notwithstanding greatly increased prices resulting from lessened farm production."

The Venango County Pomona Grange is composed of the well-to-do farmers of this district.

ONE MONGOLIAN RULER SURRENDERS AUTONOMY

Ulianghai Prince Says His Territorities Rightfully Belong To China

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, November 6.—Prince Chingsanchahpu of Ulianghai has addressed a petition to the Government, in which he points out that his Banner was included in autonomous Mongolia by the Russo-Mongolian Treaty, but that he considers that his territories rightfully belong to China and desires that the tribe under his jurisdiction shall return to that allegiance.

The Government has replied that it will be pleased to accept the Prince's proposal and the Bureau of Frontier defense has been notified accordingly.

Tuan Chi-jui this evening will receive a delegation from Urga accompanied by Prince Kalaching. Head of the Tibetan-Mongolian Bureau. It is understood that the political character of the proposed agreement will be discussed.

Hsu Shih-cheng has requested Lu Chung-yu to proceed to Urga. It is believed in connection with the formation of a Frontier Defense Bank.

Mixed Court

The "walking delegate" in Shanghai has a difficult road to travel. Instead of being the object of official solicitude and national conferences as in America or England, here he is a common lawbreaker. Ts Dong-sung appeared in Mixed Court yesterday charged with being "the ring-leader of a strike."

Various Chinese furniture manufacturers appeared and testified that Ts had visited their establishments and induced their workmen to go on strike.

Instead of defiantly agreeing with the testimony and asking as would a foreign labor leader, what of it? he sought safety in the plea that they had the wrong man.

Other witnesses appeared who made the identification certain and American Assessor Tenney and Magistrate Yui found him guilty and ordered the sentence to be one month.

WRESTLING AT OLYMPIC

Mr. William Berne, strong man of the Charles Margelis Company, has received a challenge to wrestle from a man who claims to be the champion of India. The man made his offer during an intermission in the program at the Victoria Theater two nights ago and presented a certified check for $100 as a deposit on a $500 bet. The date of the match will be announced by Mr. Charles Margelis in a few days.

Pai Pao-kim Who Saw Service In France Going North As Y. M. C. A. Man

(China Press Correspondence)

Vladivostok, Oct. 26.—Pai Pao-kim, a native of Peking, is one of the latest arrivals in Siberia, for work in the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Kim has recently returned from two years service in France, where he acted as interpreter-in-chief in the Chinese labor bureau headquarters. His duties took him all over northwest France and he also had charge of the Y.M.C.A. educational program put on for the Chinese laborers. He spent one month in London and made two trips to Belgium. Mr. Kim is a graduate of the Union College at Tungchow, and made a reputation as a runner in the Far Eastern games at Shanghai. Although rather small of stature he is the equal of any of us in enthusiasm and energy when it comes to putting across the Y.M.C.A. program. His work with the Chinese troops here will be greatly appreciated.

Vanity Fair Company

Edgar Warwick's popular Vanity Fair Company, after a successful season in Hongkong, arrived in Shanghai yesterday on the steamer Tean and sailed for Hankow at midnight. Their season here will open at the Lyceum theater Tuesday, November 18.

Special features for the return season will be new editions, new and original frocking and staging and something unusal in the way of scenery. The booking opens Saturday at Moutrie's.

BENEFIT DANCE AT CARLTON

Songs by two Russian artistes came as an agreeable surprise to the patrons of the Russian Red Cross benefit dance at the Carlton Cafe last night. They were given in the intermissions and were applauded enthusiastically.

The ball room was crowded and at midnight something over 250 admission tickets had been presented. Consul-General and Madame Grosse attended. Other members of the Consular staff were present. Prizes were awarded by numbers of the big wheel after the same manner as the Carlton prize dance of a week ago.

Rare Embroideries Shown At Woman's Club Meeting

Valuable Collection Exhibited At Carlton; Mrs. Vincent Vizenzinovitch Reads Paper

BY HELEN WILLIAMS

A rare collection of Chinese embroideries was on exhibition at the meeting of the Literary Department of the American Woman's Club yesterday afternoon at the Carlton Cafe.

Mrs. Vincent Vizeninovitch read an interesting paper describing the workmanship of these embroideries, which she has been collecting for several years.

The wonderful specimens were shown to great advantage in frames, stands and on scrolls hung on the walls. Gorgeous mandarin coats and beautifully embroidered Chinese ladies' costumes were draped over the tables. The designs on some of the smaller pieces are worked in with real peacock feathers, small seed pearls, tiny crystal beads of various colors, corals, a kind of ribbon work and applique work. In some cases pen painting was used.

There was a complete set of the eight Pah Hsien embroideries, which are remarkable for their technique, design, detail, blending and fastness of colors. This set was beautifully displayed in a large, hand carved stand with electric lights over it to bring out all the wonderful lines and colors. There was an individual carving over each picture symbolic of the story depicted.

It is impossible to say when these eight pieces were made, but they are undoubtedly over 200 years old. The figures represent the Eight Genii, or Eight Immortals who were venerated by the Taoists. The probable period when they were embroidered was either the Kang She or Jien Lung dynasties, or they may have been worked during the late Ming Dynasty, as the costumes and head-dresses depicted are of this period. The Chinese seem to have reached their highest point in the art of embroidery during the Jien Lung period.

The colorings and condition of the embroideries are splendid, even after all these years, and it is a well known fact that the old Chinese must have had a wonderful dye process, as all of these embroideries are remarkable for their fast colors. It is presumed that some of the dyes were obtained from special mineral stones, and then combined with those of vegetable origin.

AGE IS APPARENT

The embroideries were worked upon very fine white satin, which now have turned dark brown with age. The embroidery work has an absolutely smooth and glossy effect, and never becomes slightly roughened with use as finest modern embroideries do in the West. This fact is attributed to the skill of the embroiderers, who in drawing their needles through the silk, give them a peculiar twist. It is said that sometimes only one embroiderer in a whole school ever attained this wonderful skill with the needle.

There seems to be no way of ascertaining positively what sort of needles were used for this work. As steel needles were probably unknown at that time, the supposition is that tiny bristle needles were used.

The perfection of accuracy and detail attained in the Eight Pah Hsien embroideries is most unusual. The hands, feet, hair, veins and wrinkles and the life-like expressions of the eight different faces is an example of some of the finest workmanship in existence.

At the best collections of embroideries in the museums in London, Paris, Peking, Shanghai and Kioto, one does not see finer embroideries. These picture embroideries are as precious to the Chinese as the works of Rembrandt and Raphael are to the Occidental. Unfortunately it has not been possible to trace where they have been made or who made them. It is quite possible that they are the work of one person who was a splendid artist as well as a skilful embroiderer, or that an artist and an embroiderer collaborated.

Another piece of fine old embroidery shown was the Jien Lung scroll of flowers. The work on this piece is exquisite and the details of the flowers are absolutely true to nature. It includes embroidered Jien Lung imperial seals, and the inscriptions at the end of the picture are those of the Emperor Jien Lung himself. The scroll is supposed to have been an actual drawing or painting of his own and embroidered by some skillful embroiderer in his palace. This embroidery is a rare masterpiece and it is a genuine piece of old Imperial embroidery, made between 1736-1795.

Another picture shown is a remarkably embroidered and painted picture of an old Manchu hunting scene, of sportsmen riding on horseback and spearing wild animals or shooting with bow and arrow. This piece was probably made in the Kea Ching period.

The set of embroidered pictures of the Eighteen Lohans and the Kwan Yin are also very old and interesting. Next in importance as works of art on exhibition were the Imperial yellow priestly robe, most probably of the Tao Kwang period and an old woven silk picture of a warrior on horseback, either of the Jien Lung of Kea Ching periods.

Then there was a collection of many varieties of sleeve bands from the dresses of Chinese ladies, worn by them 20 to 90 years ago. Some are embroidered and others are hand painted. The balance of the exhibit consisted of fan cases, shoes, prayer bags, prayer book covers, pouches and spectacle and card cases.

MRS. WHITE RESIGNS

Mrs. F. J. White tendered her resignation as second vice-chairman of the Literary Department, and it was accepted with regret. She also suggested that the post of second vice-chairman be abolished. The motion was carried.

There will be an excursion Saturday and the members of the department who are going are to meet at 2:15 at Range and North Szechuen Roads. Admission is by card only. Any member who now has a card, and is not able to go should get in touch with Mrs. W. G. Hiltner so that another member may have the benefit of the card.

MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN AT NANTAO INSTITUTE

Announcement Is Made That $50,000 Has Been Raised For New Building

The Nantao Christian Institute (Great East Gate, is carrying on a membership campaign during the month of November. The membership fees are $1, $5, $10 and $100 respectively, for general, family, sustaining and life membership.

The activities of the Institute include lectures, entertainments, religious meetings, physical training, playground work, a higher primary day school, an English night school, and a free school for illiterates, for men and boys; and English, Bible, music and cooking classes, and social and religious meetings, for women.

Pending the erection of its new building, for which $50,000 has been secured, the work is being carried on in two rented buildings, one at the former site of the Great East Gate, the other a short distance from that gate, inside the Chinese city, where the day school and the playground are situated.

The Institute ministers to the social and religious needs of a great many Chinese living inside the Chinese city and the great eastern suburb. It is conducted under a board of directors elected from the three Chinese Presbyterian churches of Shanghai and from the American Presbyterian Mission.

W. C. T. U. MEETS

A meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held yesterday afternoon at the Union Church. The Reverend D. MacGillivray delivered an address on "Prohibition in Canada." Dr. MacGillivray returned to Shanghai recently after a long stay in America.

U.S. To Convert Ten Billion War Debt Of Allies Into Bonds

Washington, September 25.—Negotiations will be put under way soon for funding the Allies' obligations to the United States into long term securities. Nearly $10,000,000,000 in war credits have been advanced to the Allies on short term notes. Interest charge on the outstanding notes will be taken care of in the details of the funding agreement yet to be worked out.

Great Britain is the largest debtor to this government, owing about $4,000,000,000. France and Italy owe most of the remainder.

New York, September 25.—International bankers said yesterday that deferring the interest due this country on loans to foreign governments which approximate $9,700,000,000 was an important step toward improving the world credit situation.

It will mean that the Allies will be relieved for some time of the necessity of finding about $42,000,000 a month, or more than $500,000,000 a year in dollar exchange.

The news from Washington was followed by a sharp rise in exchange rates on London and Paris, which soared to the highest levels quoted in several weeks. Sterling cables went to $4.22¼, compared with $4.19 the preceding day and a recent low record level of $4.12.

MILITARY DECISIONS ANNOUNCED AT PEKING

War Ministry To Make Effort To Standardise Weapons In Use In China

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, November 2.—The Joint War and General Staff Office met yesterday and decided the following military questions:

(1) 5,000 troops now stationed in Hunan are to be transferred back to the provinces from which they came originally.

(2) To relieve the shortage of military supplies for the Northern troops in Fukien Province 200,000 cartridges considerable food supplies and $15,000 are to be sent to that province through Chang Tso-ping.

(3) No reinforcements will be sent to the Northwestern borders for the present, as funds are short and the Mongols, furthermore, are not desirous of seeing an unduly large Chinese army enter their territory.

The Ministry of War is making an attempt to standardise the weapons in use in the Chinese army, and with this end in view has instructed all the Tuchuns to report on the rifles, artillery and ammunition now used by their respective forces. In these reports the design of the weapons, the names of the manufacturers and the countries from which the arms and ammunition were bought are to be specified.

It is, furthermore, understood that the various makes of weapons now in use by the army are to be tested, and that special ammunition tests are to be held. This is regarded as important in view of the fact that General Hsu Shu-cheng's expeditionary force in Urga has had an unfortunate experience with Japanese-made ammunition and rifles.

A foreign military expert, who was in Urga last month and saw Little Hsu's troops at target practice, states that he personally tested over fifty rifles and found that it was impossible to hit a target at over 100 yards. Some rifles did not carry over fifty yards, and to make this distance and at the same time hit the target he was obliged to aim six feet above his objective. This report has created a sensation in Peking military circles and has had much to do with the present investigation by the Ministry of War.

Alumni Of McTyeire Form Association

Over 700 former McTyeire students and members of the faculty attended the inaugural meeting of the McTyeire Former Students' Association Tuesday night at the Hankow Road School. Officers for the ensuing year were elected and the aims of the organisation were defined.

The new society will include all former students of the Hankow Road institution whether graduates or not and is formed to perpetuate the interests and traditions of their alma mater. The association will also assist in the solution of educational and social problems of women in China.

The officers elected were: President, Mrs. H. H. K'ung; Vice-President, Mrs. Turpin Hsi; Recording Secretary, Miss Mayling Song; Treasurer Miss P. T. Sung; Corresponding Secretary, Miss S. C. Chiu and Advisory Council, Mrs. T. T. Wong and Miss Chyhome.

China Political Notes From ChinesePress

The Presidential Mandate, appointing General Chin Yung-peng Premier, was promulgated Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. General Chin formally took charge of the office at 11 a.m. and circulated a telegram to the provinces and the Southwest, urging the early conclusion of internal peace.

Wednesday was the birthday of Mr. Hsu Shih-chang, the President. The Ta Ching Imperial Household deputed Prince Tsai Shen to offer its congratulations. President Hsu invited him to a banquet at the Huaijentang. Both Generals Tuan Chi-jui and Chin Yun-peng called on the President to greet him. General Feng Kuo-chang sent General Shih Chin-yun as his representative.

A great deal of struggle is being staged over the formation of the new Cabinet. Mr. Chang Chi-tang, former Chief Secretary of the Cabinet, is anxious that he should get no other post but the Interior portfolio. Mr. Chang Hu is doing all he can to keep Mr. Li Shih-hao out of the Ministry of Finance. It is reported that he is approaching Parliamentarians to defeat Li's appointment. Mr. Chow Tze-chi, having failed to secure the office of the Minister of Finance, is now aiming at the Agriculture and Commerce post. He has asked a certain Tuchun to use his influence to secure the position. General Chin has told the Tuchun that while he is anxious to get the services of Mr. Chow, he is afraid that Parliament will not approve him.

Mr. Kuo Chi-yun, the Chief Secretary of the Cabinet, in spite of the President's request for him to remain in office, again tendered his resignation yesterday. It is understood that his decision is final.

Premier Chin held a conference with President Hsu Shih-chang and General Tuan Chi-jui on the question of organisation of a new Cabinet. General Tuan nominated General Wu Ping-hsian as Minister of the Interior. President Hsu was non-committal.

The Peking authorities have learned that certain agitators are now working among the students in Tientsin with the view to inciting them to take certain radical actions. The Peking administration has ordered the military and police authorities in Tientsin to take precautions.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs has telegraphed to Mr. Kwan Shan-ping, Chinese Consul-General for Chita, to report fully on the damages sustained by Mongolians in the invasion of Russians recently and to assist them in filing their claim against the Russian Government.

The Ministry of the Navy has received intelligence that the Kwang'ung navy' is about to penetrate Chekiang. It has ordered the admiralty in Shanghai to despatch warships to cruise the Chekiang seas.

GRIPOLY BELTING
Solid Woven with triple-twisted indestructible edges
Get the most out of your Machinery by using a belt which does not slip or stretch and which grips. A slipping belt in your factory is as bad as a leaking petrol tank in your motor car. "Gripoly" has proved itself under test to be the most efficient all round belting. It does not stretch or slip; it resists heat, damp, grease, friction and guide forks as no other belting can. Have the best belting and get the utmost power from your machines.
Let us know your requirements and we will advise you as to the best type of "GRIPOLY" for your needs.

"GOLD FLAKE" CIGARETTES
An Old Friend—in new Surroundings.

Announcement
We beg to announce the arrival in China of a shipment of "GOLD FLAKE" cigarettes from England.
Gold Flake brand has not only been a favourite at home but won great popularity on the Western Front during the War.
We feel sure that our friends in China will be pleased with this new arrival which has so decidedly proven its good qualities.

Money Cannot Buy More

It's made a real hit, and no wonder with such a beautiful Crepe de Chine. Hand-made, pure, in its original shade, it is offered to you in one piece, ten yards long and twenty six inches wide. Makes beautiful shirts. As a present for either sex what better article could you choose? There is sufficient Crepe in the piece to make the most beautiful dresses. For women's underwear it can't be beat. Think of the memories this Crepe brings to its owner. Think of the distance from whence it comes. Think of Marco Polo, of Kublai Kahn, of Kings, Queens and Millionaires. The richest people in the world cannot buy, any finer, more pliable, silk than this Crepe de Chine. The price of twenty dollars per piece is within reach of all. Send along your cheque or Chinese postal money order, and we will at once mail you one piece of Szechwan Crepe de Chine, postage free. If you really want to be keen, send her a piece of Crepe de Chine.

The Coal Miners' Strike

HOMER S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in a recent interview declared that if the working classes of America should at any time place American institutions in jeopardy, the patriotic masses of both the Democratic and Republican parties would unite in defense of them. "They would bury their party differences and unite for a common purpose just as they did in the war."

The situation created in America by the strike of the coal-miners would seem to call for precisely the thing that Mr. Cummings predicted. It is time that the two great parties united in defense of American institutions and declared war upon the lawless and largely alien working classes that are engaged in the present steel and coal strikes, for these groups have separated themselves from the rest of the American public and already have declared war upon American principles and institutions. They have defied the courts and they have defied their own elected government. They have united to bring about industrial paralysis. Their action is disruptive and un-American and we are glad to note that the Government is preparing to use the army in protection of the non-union workers. Joseph MacCullough, a famous American editor, said, during the exciting period which followed the sanguinary Homestead strike, that "The way to break a strike is to shoot a hole through it," and this probably is what the American Government and army will be forced to do with these strikes. These coal miners are demanding a six hours day and a thirty hour week, with double time for overtime, so that for eight hours work they will draw ten hours pay. They ought to be arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to work in the coal mines twelve hours a day for nothing.

HOW HIGH DO BIRDS FLY?

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—It was with interest I read your reprint of an article which appeared in the "Toronto Globe" on "How High do Birds Fly"?

Lieut. Rissen of the 57th Squadron R.F.C. is stated to have seen two large birds over St. Omer in 1917, flying at 15,000 ft.

At that time I was serving with the 20th squadron R.F.C. operating from the same base as Lt. Rissen's squadron, and distinctly remember the interest that was aroused in flying circles there, as many pilots and observers had seen them, and all were speculating on their possible species.

I saw on one occasion 5 large birds flying at my height 14,000 ft. that overtook and passed me, when I was doing 90 miles an hour.

My experience was not singular, as I believe our French aviation friends further South in the line had on many occasions seen similar incidents. Yours faithfully,

H. E. EASTON.

On A German Railway Train

(From The New Republic)

Early in July, just after the ratification of the peace treaty at Weimar, I was permitted to accompany Miss Addams of Hull House on a trip into Germany to look into the condition of the children after the long food blockade. Now, returned to America, I find myself confronted with questions about Germany that leave me bewildered and at a loss how to answer. What people wish me to tell is how "Germany" is taking her defeat, whether "Germany" realises she is beaten and that war does not pay. But I did not meet "Germany," I met German men and women and their views and feelings were even more varied and mutually opposed than are, so it seems to me, the views held by "America" about the treaty and about the future of Germany. Some few of those different German opinions I have tried to describe by repeating a conversation to which I listened during one of our railway trips.

The second class compartment of the Halle train into which my companion, a Dutchwoman, and I climbed was already occupied by six Germans who made room for us.

My friend is a very downright person with a refreshing lack of that desire to please which inhibits so many of us in our intercourse with people. She is immensely interested in getting at other people's point of view and in expressing her own and if in order to do this she must both give and receive hard knocks, why that is all in the day's work. She was soon deep in discussion with the five men and one woman, who made up the group. It was evident at once that at least four of the men had been in the war, but the fifth, who was older and looked like a business man, said nothing to indicate that he had ever been at the front. It was also evident that the young woman was the bride of the tall, nervous, blonde man who sat next her, for on this subject they displayed a German frankness. Indeed what first gave the conversation an interesting turn was a remark of hers to my Dutch friend. "I am just married and I hope that I shall have six sons so that they may grow up and become soldiers to fight for Germany's freedom." My friend answered characteristically that she was a very silly woman but if she talked like that after the babies came, she would be a wicked one. "Germany has done enough harm with its militarism," she said, "now you had better be sensible and get to work." This roused the whole company.

"German militarism," shouted the blonde bridegroom. "Why not French militarism, or British navalism? Are we the only militarists?"

"No, but you are the worst," answered the Dutchwoman. "Look at the way you taught militarism in your schools. Why once when I was in a village in the Schwarzwald I went into the schoolhouse and there the little boys and girls, almost babies some of them, were dropping their pennies into a box for your Flottenverein, to pay for a dreadnought. It was a shame."

"We were driven to it," said the kindly faced, plump man opposite me. "Germany, surrounded as she was by enemies waiting to spring at her throat and watched by the jealous eyes of England in all her commerce abroad, had no choice but to arm, prepare even her children for war."

"Now that is where you Germans were so stupid," said my downright friend. "Nobody was envying you and waiting to pounce on you. It was all in your own heads."

"Was it," shouted the blonde man—he never spoke without shouting—"Look at the peace treaty and see if it does not justify all our suspicions. Haven't they torn away our colonies, ruined our commerce, made us powerless as trade rivals, just as we said they went into this war to do?"

"Well, look at the other side," said the Dutchwoman, "Look at devastated France. Germany hasn't hundreds of villages in ruins, farms turned into battlefields. How would you feel if you had suffered as France has?"

"But that was war," said the blonde man. "Battlefields always are devastated."

"No," said the young Jew with melancholy eyes, "it was not only war. I was there and I know that much that was done was not necessary and cannot be justified." The blonde man glared at him but before he could speak the kindly faced man interposed. "Yes," he said, "All of us who were there know that. A great deal of what happened in France cannot be defended on the ground of military necessity."

"However," spoke up the elderly man by the window, "that is not the point. Germany agreed at the time of the armistice to restore France and Belgium. If that were all we would not object to the peace treaty. But any business man who reads the financial paragraphs can see that they were never framed with the needs of France and Belgium in mind. Those are British paragraphs and written in Britain's interest with the sole object of crushing Germany as a commercial rival. If they really cared about restoring the devastated regions they would have made it possible for Germany to work and earn and pay, but a working and earning Germany is the last thing England wants."

"There," cried the blonde man triumphantly, "isn't that what we said all along. Those damned pacifists and 'peace by understanding' theorists who kept assuring us that we could trust Wilson and the English, where are they now? The treaty shows what fools they were."

"It is incredible," spoke up with concentrated bitterness the man beside me who had been silent till then, "incredible that any German should trust a promise of England's or be taken in by Anglo-Saxon cant. Listen to them on our colonies. We are too cruel to the Negroes, out of pity for the Negroes they must take the colonies away from us. And who is to get them? Why of course Belgium must have her share. Belgium of the Congo atrocities! But the world swallows it. England can always get the world to swallow her hypocrises."

"Oh well, I hold no brief for the English. We Hollanders understand them. During the war I used to look at our little boys and think, 'Now if the Germans invade us you will have to grow up into German soldiers and if the English invade us you will have to grow up into English hypocrites, and I don't know which I should dislike most.'" There was a general laugh at this and then the pleasant-faced man said, with a glance at me: "What about America? Did she too come into the war out of jealousy of Germany, do you think?"

"No," said the Dutchwoman. "You Germans brought her in with your barbarous submarines."

"Barbarous!" exclaimed the bride, "And what about the starvation blockade? Is it as bad to kill quickly a few hundreds of women and children as to slowly torture and kill thousands, ten of thousands of them? That is only another piece of Anglo-Saxon self-righteousness and vilification of the enemy."

"In the first place," said the Dutchwoman, "the Americans did not know your women and children were starving and your government took good care not to let people know of it."

"If they had known would it have made any difference?" asked the Jew.

The Dutchwoman hesitated, obviously unable to give the answer she wanted to. "At least," she said, "you see your policy did fail, so why talk of trying it again. War settles nothing, cures nothing; war is organised insanity." At this the man beside me roused himself again. "There will be war," he said slowly, "and it will be war to the end. No pacifists will coax us again to surrender to the lying promises of a treacherous enemy. It will be war if it means wiping out the German nation. Better that than the shame of this peace."

The young bride lifted a glowing face. "Is it not splendid," she cried, "to hear our young men speak like this, and would it not be terrible if they did not? Are we to sit still and endure while millions of our brothers are put under a foreign yoke? I am not spepaking of Alsace or the Saar, though they are bad enough, but of Poland. Have you any idea what it means to put Germans under Polish rule?"

"Yes," said the Dutchwoman. "I have seen Polish villages and German villages and I know that it is like going from dirt to cleanliness and from disorder to thrift and industry. It is cruel and it is stupid, but why think war is the way to right it. This peace is bad because it is the end of a bad war. Why try to mend it with another war?"

"If not war, what?" asked the sad-eyed Jew.

"Use your brains, use intellectual, moral weapons," said my friend. "This treaty is unjust. Very well, you Germans are not the only people who can see injustice. Sooner or later the others must come to see it. Go to work and fulfil the treaty as it stands and trust to the world's coming to see things in their real light after the peoples of the Entente have had time to get over the insanity of the war."

"Good sense," said the elderly man, but the blonde bridegroom turned on him fiercely: "That is a philosophy for old men," he cried, "not for us who are strong and have still some spirit left."

The train rolled into the Halle station and the men sprang up to hand down our bags, open the door and call a porter for us. There was a chorus of "good night" and "pleasant journey." At the door my Dutch friend paused for a final shot: "You men have made a pretty muddle of things for the last five years. Now take a woman's advice and try some new methods."

I have given this conversation as I heard it. If I had made it into a symposium of all the views I listened to in Germany I should have had to add several persons to the travelers in that second class coach.

There would have been two or three men who would have said that in spite of Germany's present plight they rejoiced over her defeat for had she been victorious the German people would have been delivered over into the hands of their militarist aristocracy for years to come. To these men Germany beaten, humiliated, poverty-stricken is in a better case than would be Germany triumphant and powerful. Without realising it, they were accepting the Christian philosophy of defeat and failure. As I listened to them I could not help wondering if my own country were not facing dangers perhaps even greater than those Germany faces, just because we have emerged from the war so much the richest and most powerful. While the Germans pray "In all times of our adversity," we need to pray with greater fervor "In all times of our prosperity, good Lord deliver us."

'As A Rejection Of The Treaty'

(New York World)

Premier Clemenceau, in answer to interpellations in regard to the treaty of peace, told the Chamber of Deputies on April 25, that "you have only the right to accept it or reject it as a whole, without amending it."

President Wilson the day before, in his speech at Cheyenne, said in regard to the Lodge committee's reservation to Article X., "If any such reservation is adopted I shall be obliged as Chief Executive to regard it as a rejection of the treaty." Holding the view that he does, that Article X. is vital to the covenant of the League of Nations and that without the covenant the treaty is only another scrap of paper, no other course of action on the part of the President would be possible. The last word and final responsibility are with him.

The power of the Senate over treaties is in fact no greater than the power of the Chamber of Deputies. Senators claim the power to amend treaties, but no such power exists except with the consent and assistance of the President. When a treaty is amended in the Senate it is no longer the treaty that was negotiated but the draft of a new convention which is submitted to the Chief Executive. He is the sole judge of what shall be done with it.

If he believes that the objects of the original treaty have been destroyed by the Senate amendments he can refuse to reopen negotiations with the other Governments, in which case there is no treaty. Many Presidents have done this when the Senate has persisted in mutilating treaties submitted for its "advice and consent." If the President does not believe the changes suggested by the Senate are vital he can take the matter up again with the other Governments concerned and endeavor to obtain their consent to the new treaty.

The President is unquestionably right in his interpretation of the Lodge reservation in regard to Article X. It is equivalent to a rejection of the covenant, inasmuch as it provides that "the United States declines to assume, under the provisions of Article X. or under any other article, any obligation" in any matter arising under the covenant. If the United States is to assume no obligation whatever for maintaining the peace of the world and for minimising the cause of war, it has no right to be in the League at all. Its membership would be a piece of false pretense. Without a responsible League, the United States could not afford to make itself a party to a treaty of peace that could be upheld only at the point of the bayonet. The only prudent course would be to negotiate a separate peace with Germany, covering only the issues which involve us, and dissociate ourselves completely from the Treaty of Versailles.

That is the direction in which the Lodge program, with all its amendments and reservations, is leading, and the President cannot make the fact too plain. If the Senate majority were actuated merely by a desire to define more clearly the duties and obligations which the United States is to assume that could be done in twenty-four hours and practically a unanimous vote secured. The Senate certainly has a right, in the process of ratification, to interpret the various articles of the covenant as it understands them, but Senator Lodge and his associates have refused to accept interpretative reservations. They demand reservations that are amendments and that will necessitate "sending the treaty back to the conference;" as Senator Lodge has expressed it.

This assumes a power that the Senate does not possess. It cannot send the treaty back to the conference. That is for the President to say, and if the Lodge reservations are to prevail in the form in which they have been drafted President Wilson will be in duty bound to regard them as a rejection of the treaty, with all that such rejection implies.

Celebrating An Oil Strike

(From The Kansas City Star)

They oiled Main street in Pruntytown, W. Va., the other day. This was a long step in the march of progress, for which the editor of the Palladium had been fighting and hollering almost since anybody could remember. As soon as they could get to it after the oil was put on it seemed as if everybody in town walked in the mess with both feet, except poor Ed Hopper, who has only one leg. And a wag said that old Eli Feebles, who is paralysed, sat in his chair and cried like a child because he couldn't get out and stroll around in the stuff. Afterward everybody went home and tromped it all over their front porches and on their parlor carpets, and hung their feet on the rungs of the chairs.

Humors Of Fiume Coup

Troops Sent To Curb d'Annunzio Put Themselves At His Disposal

Rome, September 21.—Despite the gravity of the Fiume situation, humorous features are not lacking in d'Annunzio's coup d'etat, which has even some characteristics of comic opera. The poet-orator who has become a fighting leader of men and has enthroned himself in the Municipal Palace of Fiume issues proclamations to the whole world.

He cannot be charged with the dreamy impracticability of the poet; in fact, he has shown great cunning. On the pretext of going to Venice to study old manuscripts for information as to air conditions of his flight to Tokio, he hoodwinked the Government and organised his expedition. He asked for a big sum of money for the expenses of his flight, which was granted him, and then used it to equip his followers. Majors and Colonels have fallen under his spell and obey his orders. Admirals and Generals have asked for audiences and have been graciously received, and politely but firmly sent home again.

All this with an appropriate and beautiful setting, for the historic town of Fiume is in a ferment of patriotic feeling, with its citizens crowding the streets and shouting "Viva Fiume Italiana!" Every window is beflagged with the Italian tri-color. Over the Municipal Tower, where only a few days ago the American, British, French and Italian flags waved, now only one flag flies—that of Italy.

Italian sailors and carabinieri keep order in the town. The Government, having ordered a blockade of Fiume, sent troops to the city. A follower of d'Annunzio went to meet them, and the two forces immediately fraternised. Other troops were sent, with the same result. The news reached Abbazia, where an interallied command is now stationed. Two brigades were sent to Fiume. The officers, before taking up their positions, sent messages to d'Annunzio asking him whether he desired them to remain where they were or to enter Fiume. The poet thanked them, but prayed them to remain, as he had more than enough troops in Fiume. In this way the "blockade" began.

Signor Malagodi, editor of the Tribuna, says that d'Annunzio's act is in accord with the Italian national spirit and is, indeed, a reply, though violent, to the domineering attitude of that solemn entity the League of Nations, which in the case of Fiume has certainly not initiated its operations in the best manner imaginable.

Still, he continues, Italy cannot permit her international relations to be guided by the impulses, sentiments, and judgments, however noble, of individuals, since lack of national unity will only diminish Italy's authority in the councils of the nations and weaken her influence in international affairs. The gallant adventurers must submit their individual wills to the sense of national responsibility. Italians, he says, are proud of the survival of the Garibaldian spirit, which other nations may well envy them.

[redacted]

differs from that of the other Allies only in degree, and action founded on the threat of starvation would be not only humiliating for Italy but also morally unworthy of her allies. He repudiates the idea that President Wilson could consider for a moment the possibility of cutting off the necessities of life from the Italian nation in reply to an act of ideal protest, of which one may disapprove but which one must realise is profoundly justified by national sentiment.

APPEAL TO POWERS

Fiume, September 20 (Associated Press).—Gabriele d'Annunzio said in an interview here today that he was making ready an appeal to the President of the United States, the King of England, and the French people to support him in his occupation of Fiume for Italy, which he intended to maintain to his dying day, having determined never to leave the city. He was confident, he said, that his appeal would bear fruit.

"I cannot believe there will be any complication with France or England," said the poet-commander, "as in the past I have done something in the interest of both countries. Therefore, it is impossible that they should repay me with ingratitude. In fact, I am preparing an appeal to President Wilson, King George, and the people of France.

"My men here are ready to die for our cause, while I will not leave Fiume either alive or dead. I have already chosen in a fine cemetery, dark with cypresses, a small hill looking toward the sea, covered with laurel, where I wish to be buried."

"I do not believe the Allies will do anything against me, as I will do nothing against them. I consider the blockade, however, contrary to the rights of man, no one having the right to attempt to starve the 30,000 inhabitants of Fiume simply because they wish to remain Italians forever.

"No conflict is possible with the Italian troops, as I do not believe there is a single soldier who would fire against my men."

Some War Figures

Some comparative figures which force a realisation of the magnitude of the world war just ended are given in a current issue of Henry Ford's "Dearborn Independent," from which is quoted:

"There were nineteen major wars fought in the world in the 117 years from 1793 to 1910. The late war cost 50 percent more in lives and cost 700 percent more in money spent than the whole nineteen other wars put together.

"The most costly in lives of the previous wars was that between England and France, 1793-1815, a total of 1,900,000 men having perished.

"Next came the war of 1854-'56, in which England, France, Sardinia, Turkey, Austria and Russia fought; 609,797 men were killed.

"The more recent war between Russia and Japan came third, claiming the lives of 555,900 men.

"In our own war of the Rebellion both sides together lost 494,400 men, ranking fourth in loss of life in the great wars previous to the late one.

"In the struggle between France and Germany, so disastrous to France and which played a very important part in the recent peace settlement, 311,000 lives were lost.

"We Americans who remember or have read of the war of the Rebellion, of Gettysburg, of Pickett's charge, of Sherman's march to the sea, of Andersonville, have been wont to look on it as one of terrible slaughter—and it was.

"But Russia alone lost more than three times as many men in the late war as were lost by both the North and the South in the Civil War.

"Germany lost more than three times as many.

"France lost nearly three times as many.

"Great Britain lost nearly twice as many.

"Austria lost nearly twice as many.

"So great has been the development in the engines of death that it is almost impossible to conceive the increase of fatalities in the late war as compared with previous wars.

"There were sixty-nine years of war among the various nations in the 117 years prior to 1910.

"As nearly as can be learned, 5,098,097 men lost their lives in those wars.

"That would mean 73,885 lives lost a year, or about 200 a day.

"In the late war there were 200 men killed an hour, about 4,800 for every day of the war; a total of 7,450,200, according to the best available figures. That would be about 1,750,000 a year.

"In money cost of previous wars the French-English War, 1793-1815, comes first, with its tax of $6,250,000,000. The present war cost about $200,000,000,000."

Attack On Principles Of English Language

By Garrett P. Serviss

Is the English language as great and superior a means of all-round expression for thought and feeling as most of us to whom it is a native tongue believe it to be? A resident of New York who bears a Spanish name writes me that thirteen years ago, when he began the study of it he regarded the English tongue as "the fittest linguistic instrument on earth." But he "gradually became disillusioned to the point of holding now the entire reverse opinion."

It is interesting and informing to consider his objections and thus to see our language through the eyes of one not born to its use.

"Upon mature observation," says this critic, "I have found that the English language is remarkable for its want of abstract terms, as well as for its borrowing principle, so that if the foreign words would be extracted from an English dictionary the remaining vocables would make it impossible for English-speaking people to carry on the work and intercourse of modern vicilisation.

"Furthermore, the lack of finish, the barshness of sound and incongruency of expression corrobarate to make what is called English the most inesthetical language on earth—indeed, one per se excluded from the higher attempts of human endeavor. The mechanical tendency of expression, the short-cutting inclination of the language, are marked symptoms of degeneracy.

WHAT OTHERS THINK

"Back of every English speaker one cannot help seeing all the time the Briton serf trying to imitate the polished language of his Norman conqueror and master, or the native corrupting the language of his Roman ruler. If you like to know what others think of English, this is a fair sample of what we Latins feel about it."

It would be foolish to refuse to listen to such criticism. On the contrary, we ought to listen to it in order to see whether we ordinary speakers and writers of English can show good reason for the faith we have in the great excellence of our language, if not in its general superiority to all others now spoken.

There is no doubt that a language reflects the moral and mental qualities of the people who have developed it. But it is important to remember that those qualities shape the language, and not the language the qualities. "While race is to a great extent persistent," says Isaac Taylor, "language is extremely mutable. Many countries have repeatedly changed their speech, while the race has remained essentially the same."

Changes of language are mainly brought about by conquest, invasion or emigration. Where the original language was vigorous and well developed it will be found not to have been obliterated, but rather modified and enriched by alteration of grammar and enlargement of vocabulary. This has been very particularly the case with English. Originally a Teutonic tongue, it began as a highly inflected language (i. e., one in which differences or relations of tense, case, number, person, gender, etc., are expressed by alterations in the form of the words).

ABSURD CHARGE DISPROVED

What makes a language fit as a linguistic instrument? Clearly, the capacity to give easy and effective expression to thought and feeling; in addition to that, suitability to the times. There is no room here for quotations, but anybody who will consult the card catalogues of the libraries can easily convince himself that, by the general judgment of mankind, expressed or implied, English leads all other tongues in simplicity of form, flexibility, richness of vocabulary, ease of acquisition, and ability to assimilate valuable elements from without.

No one wishes to deny the immensity of the debt that English owes to French, Latin, Greek and other tongues. It is confessedly the greatest borrower of words among all the tongues, as the United States is the greatest borrower of human material among all the nations—but in both cases the borrowing has been that of a capitalist who is richer than his creditors, and who repays them tenfold. As to the absurd assertion that English is "the most inesthetical language on earth," let Shakespeare reply, while the words of Washington and Lincoln show whether the language of America is "per se excluded from the higher attempts of human endeavor."

Keeping Up Enthusiasm

By Eleanor Gilbert

(Author of "The Ambitious Woman in Business")

Enthusiasm is one of the chief Allies of the woman whose business involves mental or sociological work or the direction of a large number of employes. The teacher, the writer, the artist, the seller of merchandise, the social worker, without the sparkle of enthusiasm for her particular occupation is dull, drab, and no more humanly interesting than her text books or her catalogues.

Unfortunately even the most sincere worker cannot always be a feminine Billy Sunday. There are inevitable blue Mondays when the mail brings disappointments, the invaluable assistant is home ill, a stern reproof comes from headquarters for some sin of commission or omission, and nothing seems worth while doing outside of hating the universe in general. Even a most beloved work is likely to lose its glamour under the misleading reflection of a "hoodoo" day.

These are the days when we can judge the value of the mental discipline which our work has given us. The really disciplined woman can separate her emotions from her mental operations and regardless of her own feelings radiate the same interest and spontaneity that she encourages in normal times.

True, it may be only a "synthetic" enthusiasm, but its results may be not a whit inferior to other days. She can concentrate on things so completely as to leave no room for mental musings. Sometimes she can select her work as far as possible from the disturbing element in it, and that element can be taken up the day following when the emotion about it has disappeared.

One social worker who is of the "bubblingly enthusiastic" variety keeps a very concrete antidote for days of depression when success seems impossible, work futile and mankind hopeless. She has for years—more for entertainment than out of egotism—kept a scrap book of press notices which her work has received, and to this she supplements from time to time the spoken words of approval which she has directly or indirectly received from various persons.

These she records whenever the opportunity demands—and in a few years has collected a goodly number of pages which refresh her in days of discouragement with all the lovely things which have been said about her.

Which gives rise to the conviction that nothing can stimulate us so much to activity and enthusiasm as concrete evidences of what we already have done. Was it worth while yesterday? Why? What did we do and how did it succeed? And if this fails, sometimes an entirely new idea for tomorrow will stir a waning enthusiasm to a high pitch.

Every one's enthusiasm is stimulated largely by the new. It is the new idea in the book that awakens the enthusiasm of the public; the new sales idea that arouses the interest of the manufacturer or merchant; the new necessity for human service that impels the philanthropist into enthusiastic activity.

Can you manufacture for yourself a cold storage supply of enthusiasm?

FOREIGN CHILDREN IN THE FAR EAST

are especially subject to worms, some of the indications of which are irregular appetite, bad breath, grinding of the teeth in sleep, pain and swelling of the abdomen, irritation in the nose. Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, given for a few days destroy worms, and a marked improvement in appetite and general health speedily follows.

As an example of their efficacy in cases of this nature the evidence of Mrs. E. Morrison, Didsbury, Northwest Canada, is illuminating. She writes:

"I can strongly recommend Baby's Own Tablets to mothers whose children are troubled with worms. I have never used a better medicine for this trouble. I have also found the Tablets good at teething time."

Babies and young children need special medicine of their own, something prompt yet mild in action, and which can be given without the slightest fear or hesitation. Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy exactly answer this description. They are guaranteed under Government Analyst's certificate to contain not the slightest atom of opiate, narcotic, or other injurious drug, and they are just the right remedy for infantile indigestion, colic, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, teething troubles and colds. Obtainable from chemists everywhere, also post free at 60 cents the vial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

I have many friends now dwelling in the style of which I'm telling, for they love apartment life. They adore the elevator and they're fond of the dumb waiter; they enjoy the stress and strife. To the janitor they'll jabber of their jars of cream and clabber, nor is this the only jar. Through the winter they will mutter when their steam pipes feebly sputter: yes, they like to tilt and spar. Though the door-beds, rather bumpy, make their tempers somewhat grumpy they won't choose another way; but within their crowded quarters with their wives and sons and daughters and their dogs and cats they'll stay. And they'd rather send dear Mary to a Young Girls' Seminary than to move to streets taboo. When they put sweet little Gladys in an orphange its saddish; but whatever can they do? And no cook could ever hitch in the small space that's meant for kitchen, which is called a kitchenette. In the diner they're unable to spread out a dining table, so they use a tabourette. At the fact that, there's no celler does the apartmenteur bellow? Nix, he buys a cellarette. All the romping modern dances call for such widespread expanses, they must dance the minuet, and upon the roof you'll pardon the excuse for a roof-garden, for it's just a gardenette.

Anecdotes Of The Famous

Viotti, the famous French musician of the eighteenth century, had a contempt for royalty and an exaggerated opinion of himself, as the following story shows. One day he was summoned to Versailles to play before Marie Antoinette and the Court. The performance had begun; the opening bars of his favorite solo commanded breathless attention, when a cry was heard—

"Place for Monseigneur the Comte d'Artois!"

At the sound Viotti immediately ceased playing cast an indignant glance at his audience, placed his violin under his arm, and walked out of the place.

The Over-Eating Habit

By Brice Belden, M. D.

We may be in a fair way to abate the evils of intemperance so far as alcohol is concerned, but there remains a greater evil—intemperate eating.

Self control in the matter of eating is called for just as much as in the matter of drinking. The principle of moderation, applied to eating, would bring us to a millennium of health, now that John Barleycorn has been laid low. The "physical morality" of Herbert Spencer awaits a more general understanding and acceptance.

All life has a moral basis. All violations of the laws of health are physical sins. We are really not at liberty to treat our bodies as we please, for the physical disorders due to bad hygienic conduct inflict evil consequences on our descendants as great as those due to crime.

Simplicity in habits of eating is a powerful aid to purity of life. Distinguished hygienists have held, not cynically but in real earnest, that correct habits of living are as efficacious as prayer.

Most of us have no desire to be saints, but we do wish to feel, think and act naturally, to be possessed of good mental and bodily health, and to achieve something worth while in the world. Clean living with regard to food will go as far toward these ends as prayer, according to the scientists, and, after all, the laws governing the healthful performance of the bodily functions are as much the laws of God as are those governing the soul.

There is a religion of the body as there is a religion of the soul. The most complete and perfect laboratory in the world, the human body, should be thought of as a temple in a very real sense—the temple of health.

No amount of deep breathing, exercise, physical culture, drugs, etc., will altogether offset the evil effects of overeating, while for those who cannot resort to activities which would tend to mitigate such evil effects disease lurks near.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By William F. Kirk

Ma was reeding the paiper, What Society is Doing.

Deer me, sed Ma, I see the Goldgrabbers have parted. I used to see Missus Goldgrabber at the horse show and I thot she was butiful. Men is queer creeturs, sed Ma, to think of a gentleman leeving a buty like Missus Goldgrabber, sed Ma.

Pritty tuff, pritty tuff, sed Pa. Maybe the old gurl kep his beezer to the grindstoan, sed Pa.

It says here that thay dident git along well, sed Ma, so she has went to Reeno. How perfeckly thrilling, sed Ma.

Thrilling nonsense, sed Pa. Why doant you reed about the big things that is happening in the wurld, and not about the littel squabbels of little folks that think thay are big, sed Pa? A hundred yeers from now, sed Pa, the naims of that whole click will be forgot, sed Pa. While naims like Wilson and McGraw and Mathewson will still be fresh, sed Pa, in every mind.

Maybe so, sed Ma, but all us ladies is kind of interested in society. It is nice to reed about nice peepul.

I had my fling in that gang, sed Pa, and thay dident reemind me of any Bibel Class.

Wen did you go with them? sed Ma.

One winter wen I was singel, sed Pa. I rote a play in blank verse, so blank minds cud understand it, sed Pa, & thay played it in the Smart set. Wen thay was naimed the Smart set, sed Pa, Shakespeer must have flopped oaver in his grave.

Thay must be charming, tho, sed Ma.

I dident notis it, sed Pa. I have met much moar charminger peepul rite in this littel town, Pa sed.

It is a wonder you dident charm sum Air-ess, sed Ma. How did you cum to marry little Me? sed Ma, after meeting all them swell peepul?

Beekaus my eagel eye cud look thru thare masks, sed Pa. I saw under the Ee-namel, sed Pa, a lot of Vannity and con-ceet and silly things, sed Pa. So I made my get away, Pa sed, beefoar a Air-ess cud marry me. Then I met you, and you grabbed me, sed Pa.

I like the way you put it, Sed Ma, I was not so vary eeger to wed you, tho I am more than glad now, sed Ma, beekaus you turned out pritty fair after all. Here is the paiper now, sed Ma, you can look oaver the soshul items. So Pa took the paiper & the first soshul item he red was The Giants cannot hoap to overtaik Cincinnaty this seeson.

Only A Suggestion

(From The Buffalo Commercial)

Lord Rothmere's suggestion that Great Britain sell the Bermudas and Bahamas or cede British Guiana or Honduras to the United States to help pay off the British war debt has not been received with much enthusiasm by his countrymen. Nor will it be by a great many Americans.

TONDEUSE-RASOIR

The TONDEUSE-RASOIR is the only hair clipping device which trims the hair as close to the surface of the skin and as perfectly as a razor.

The TONDEUSE-RASOIR combines the advantage of a fine blade razor and of hair clippers without the disadvantage of employing soap.

The TONDEUSE-RASOIR can be used for several years without changing the cutting combs and without needing to be sharpened.

The TONDEUSE-RASOIR does not need a strop, cup, soap or brush.

The TONDEUSE-RASOIR comes as a blessing to Ladies as it keeps the underarm and the legs white and smooth.

Freight Market

Messrs. Wheelock and Co. write as follows in their report dated November 6:

The situation in our Homeward Freight market is as follows:

To United Kingdom and Continent.—There is still a fair amount of cargo going forward on this berth under old contracts and although there are twelve steamers advertised to load during this month they are all receiving good support.

To United States via Pacific.—This berth is rather quiet as exchange is still interfering with business but there is still a certain amount of cargo moving especially silk and the walnut season is just commencing the indications for which appear to be good for a large export:

Coastwise.—This market has been somewhat dull during the past fortnight but we expect to see an improvement in the near future before the Northern Ports close for the winter.

For New York via Panama and Suez.—There is very little cargo offering on this berth owing to the high exchange ruling which makes it extremely difficult to do any business and we fail to see how the twelve steamers which are advertised to load on this berth during the next two months can fill their allotments.

Two new lines are shortly placing steamers on this berth, viz:—the Admiral Line and the Robert Dollar Co.:—the rates by the former are the same as Tariff 19 and the latter are quoting rates in U. S. Gold $ as nearly as possible quivalent to Tariff 19 as the extremely fluctuating state of exchange will permit.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows in their exchange circular for week ending November 5:

Exchange.—Spot Silver in London at the abnormal price of 67d. per oz. shows an advance of 1⅝d. since this day last week, while the forward price at 64½d. shows a rise of ⅛d. in the same period.

Considerable buying towards the close of last week caused a distinctly easier feeling in the market.

Since when plenty of cover has been offering and today the market closes strong, a premium of 2d. over the current rate being asked for November bills.

Today although there are sellers at 6-10 for cash T.T. there is very little demand.

The London-Paris rate has fallen away from 36.15 to 36.75, while the New York-London rate at 4.17 remains steady.

The local stock of sycee and bar silver at Tls. 21,335,000 is about 15 lakhs down, while the stock of Mexican and Chinese Dollars at $12,510,000 is $380,000 down.
